AMAZON BRINGING MORE THAN 600 JOBS

Amazon will be opening a new fulfillment center on the west side of Los Lunas off NM Hwy 6, eventually creating over 600 full-time jobs with comprehensive benefits.

Amazon employees will pick, pack, and ship items to customers from the one million square foot facility that is scheduled to launch in 2023.

"We're excited to open our customer fulfillment center in Los Lunas and to bring over 600 full-time jobs to the community," said Economic Development Manager Sam Bailey.

"Los Lunas has a great workforce, and we are excited to add to the amazing team currently helping us set a higher standard of operational excellence and delivering outstanding customer experience every day," said Bailey.

This includes an average starting wage for front-line employees of more than $15 per hour and comprehensive benefits for full-time employees worth an additional $3.50 per hour.

These benefits include health, vision, and dental insurance; a 401(k) with 50% company match; up to 20 weeks paid parental leave; and Amazon's Career Choice program, through which the company fully funds the cost of an employee's college tuition, including classes, books, and fees.

"This Amazon facility is a significant economic development opportunity for the Village of Los Lunas," said Mayor Charles Griego of the Village of Los Lunas. "The investment into the community during the post-pandemic climate will be transformative, generating over 600 full-time jobs and a total economic impact of over $200 million."

"Our ability to create more employment opportunities for our local families could not have come at a better time," said Griego. "We are beyond excited to have Amazon become another great community partner."

Amazon has invested more than $200 million in the State of New Mexico, creating 3,500 full- and part-time jobs, as well as 1,000 indirect jobs. New Mexico boasts over 8,700 small and medium business sellers and independent authors in New Mexico growing their businesses with Amazon.
